ORIENTATION...REGISTRATION

PRESIDENT'S RECEPTION

From the first day of orientation and through registration, confusion reigns supreme as the internal master of all our minds.

The beginning of orientation marks the beginning of a new way of life for all the Freshmen and new students who have not yet been acquainted with the "Martin way".

Before the excitement of orientation has a chance to wear off, we are plunged into perhaps the most confusing aspect of college life - - registration. For two days, underclassmen and upperclassmen alike are dashing constantly from one place to another, making an attempt to begin the school year in a settled fashion.

AND CLASSES COME EARLY

The fun and confusion are over. The fact that one's schedule card indicates he is to report for class at 8 o'clock in the morning causes a reflection, and then a realization that, after all, college is for learning and acquiring academic knowledge, too.

TIME OUT FOR A SNOWBALL BATTLE.

Coffee and coke breaks are the backbone of the college. Rarely is the Student Union seen when it is not full of students and faculty taking their breaks. It is just such casual gatherings that sow the seeds of deeper growth and constitute a definite part of higher learning. These are the incidents that will be remembered and give college life significance.

LIFE IN THE DORMITORIES...

Although the dorms are thought of as a place of retirement, they are rather the scene of great activity. The bull sessions that are held in the dormitories probably require more mental activity than the average student ever dreamed of using in his academic work. Lifelong friendships are made in dorms as a result of the roommate or person down the hall who becomes more of a brother or sister than just a friend. Of course, the showers are the scene of much controversy and actual combat with toothpaste and shaving cream wars and water fights.

By the end of the school year, the walls of the dormitories have practically become hallowed, for they hold the secrets that must not be told to a soul. They hold the hopes and disappointments, the laughter and the tears, and become mellowed with such through the generations. They have seen it all, and yet remain staunch for the next year with its new joys and sadnesses.

CONFEDERATE HERO, SAM DAVIS

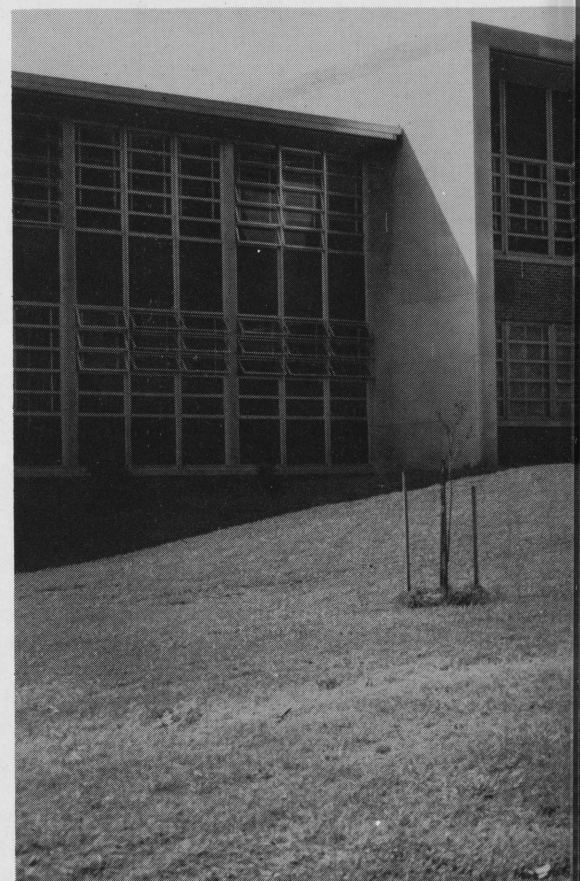

The city of Pulaski has its influence on Martin and thus on the students. It is a town with a rich historical background. During the Civil War, Pulaski was the site of many incidents, one of which was the hanging of the Confederate hero, Sam Davis. The original Ku Klux Klan was organized here on December 24, 1865. Giles County has furnished the State of Tennessee with three governors. Pulaski today is an industrious, prosperous community located in the "land of milk and honey".

With graduation we come to the end of another year at Martin. The campus is deserted.....benches empty, classrooms void of life. With finals over and graduation completed, the students spill out from the campus to a variety of places and activities. Some leave for work for the summer -- some for life. For many now is the time to relax and enjoy life.....before it begins again. The old year is over, though, dead.....except in the memories of those who experienced it.

PRESIDENT FOWLER

To the Students of Martin College:

You have been a vital part of the attempt to increase the prestige of Martin College in educational circles. You have witnessed the finishing of the new Science Building. Your spirit of cooperation has been a means for the encouragement of thousands of individuals to give greater support for the improvement of the College in every way.

All wish the Seniors only the best for the future as they depart.

With expectancy the Staff at Martin will anticipate another great year, with the return of the Freshmen.

As we all work together, Martin will continue to grow into a greater and better institution.

Sincerely,

J. Fort Fowler

THE INDIANS WORK HARD FOR VICTORY

With the selection of the homecoming queen and her court the mood was set for the big day. Old grads from all over Tennessee returned. The day was grand for the occasion. The game proved exciting from start to finish. The Indians won by a large margin, making Martin spirits soar. The game was climaxed by the presentation of the Homecoming Queen, Jane Shelton, and the Court.
